Part III – Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

Organization's Primary Exempt Purpose

Mission

The Alan Guttmacher Institute advances sexual and reproductive health and rights globally through an interrelated program of social science research, policy analysis and public education to encourage enlightened public debate, promote sound policy and program development, and inform individual decision-making.

Values

The Institute's program is guided by six overarching institutional values:

- Attention to methodological rigor and accuracy as fundamental to the integrity and credibility of the Institute's research;
- Commitment to publishing and disseminating results of the Institute's research, regardless of the political or program ramifications, and to evidence-based public education and advocacy;
- Openness to using outside experts' perspectives to enrich the Institute's program and enhance its understanding of the issues;
- Anticipation and study of emerging issues to equip the Institute to inform public debate when such issues gain prominence;
- Balance between new and ongoing priorities to ensure that the Institute is both on the cutting edge of scholarly and political thought and fully committed to core issues of ongoing importance; and
- Collaboration with others to expand the reach and sustainability of the Institute's efforts.

Guiding Principles

A Vision for the Future

The Institute envisions a world in which all women and men have the ability to exercise their rights and responsibilities regarding sexual behavior, reproduction and family formation freely and with dignity. Essential to this vision are societal respect for and protection of personal decision-making with respect to unwanted pregnancies and births, as well as public- and private-sector policies that support individuals and couples in their efforts to become responsible and supportive parents, maintain stable family structures, and balance parenting with other roles. Equally vital to the Institute's vision is the eradication of persistent gender inequality worldwide and the attainment of equal status, rights and responsibilities for women within all sexual, familial and social relationships.

A Comprehensive View of Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights

The Institute regards sexual and reproductive health and rights as encompassing a wide range of people's needs from adolescence onward. The Institute works to protect, expand and equalize access to information, services and rights that will enable them to:

- Avoid unplanned pregnancies;
- Prevent and treat sexually transmitted infections, including HIV;
- Exercise the right to choose abortion;
- Achieve healthy pregnancies and births; and
- Have healthy, satisfying sexual relationships.

Priority Attention to Those with Greatest Need

The Institute promotes the sexual and reproductive health and rights of all people, but gives priority attention to the needs and concerns of those whose access to information, services or other societal benefits may be impeded by their age, marital status, geography or income, or because of gender, racial, ethnic, religious or cultural discrimination.

A Responsibility to the United States and the World

The Institute is acutely aware of the pressing need to improve the quality of policy and programs concerning sexual and reproductive health and rights in the United States and regards achieving this goal as its primary responsibility. Understanding that the political, cultural and economic power of the United States can have considerable impact on sexual and reproductive health and rights throughout the world, the Institute places a similarly high priority on monitoring and analyzing the effects of U.S. policy on women and men in other countries.

In its international efforts, The Institute is mindful that across and within countries, certain commonalities underlie the circumstances in which sexuality is expressed, families or unions are formed, and children are conceived and born; guided by this awareness, the Institute emphasizes the development and dissemination of thematic cross-country and country-specific work that will have the greatest relevance in other parts of the world.

The Alan Guttmacher Institute

Part III – Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

To fulfill its mission, The Alan Guttmacher Institute used its annual budget of $10,299,290 -- $7,825,105 in Program Services – to support its global research and public education activities, based in New York, and its public policy work, based in Washington, DC.

In determining its priorities, the Institute anticipates social, political and legal conditions that will propel sexual and reproductive health issues to the forefront of public attention and program and policy development. Each current effort builds on those of the past. The process is a cyclical one, in which public policy developments lead to research and then to communication of findings, recommendations and ideas. The Institute strives to provide information that will have multiple uses at the national, state, local – and international – levels. By actively seeking the cooperation and advice of other organizations and researchers, the Institute encourages collaborative endeavors that will serve its mission, increase its effectiveness and avoid duplication of effort.

The Institute informs its various audiences – policymakers, activists, health professionals, researchers, the media and the public - through the following:

- Perspectives on Sexual and Reproductive Health – a peer-reviewed, bimonthly journal of original, policy-relevant, widely referenced research and analysis on sexual and reproductive health in the United States and other developed countries.
- International Family Planning Perspectives – a peer-reviewed quarterly journal of research articles for use by those concerned with fertility, family planning, maternal and child health, and population policy, with summaries in Spanish and French.
- The Guttmacher Report on Public Policy - a bimonthly review that analyzes sexual and reproductive health policymaking in Washington and in state capitals across the country – information critical to understanding, anticipating and effecting change.
- Web site (www.guttmacher.org).
- Special reports, news releases, electronic list serve announcements, fact sheets, policy papers, and slide series.
