It is the largest charity effort of its kind in the world. Global Impact manages the campaign in the Washington, DC area and the campaign for men and women in the Department of Defense serving overseas. During this past year, both campaigns once again reached new records in giving. The Combined Federal Campaign of the National Capital Area raised $62.7 million in 2008. That is an unprecedented growth of 33 percent during the last six years under Global Impact's direction. Donors in the Combined Federal Campaign—Overseas increased their giving to $15.8 million in 2008, a 134 percent increase since Global Impact began managing the campaign in 1996. This statistic takes on special significance because donors include thousands of military personnel deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan who are already making enormous personal sacrifices through their service to our country. Donors in the two campaigns increased their giving by $2 million to help people in need, accounting for 72 percent of all new funds raised nationwide by over 240 CFCs last year.

Every charity has passed a thorough vetting process and has a proven record of success in promoting self-sufficiency, strengthening communities and offering hope. One of the ways Global Impact raises funds for its member charities is by participating in nearly 500 workplace giving campaigns across a full spectrum of public and private-sector organizations.
	Global Impact experienced growth in every direction last year International relief and development donations grew by two percent, eight new corporations became partners for workplace giving campaigns and almost half a million employees joined the potential donor base. Operating at the hub of this expanding network, Global Impact streamlines corporate campaigns, supports employee interests and funds relief and development work around the world.
