Part V
Question 33

Significant new activities initiated during 2009

Educational Campaign:

The project entitled: "Rescuing San Diego Children from Abuse" was an educational project originally designed to educate both media and policymakers in San Diego County on child pornography. It was designed to educate the public that:

- 1) child pornography users are far more dangerous than previously realized,
- 2) child pornography discovery should be reported immediately,
- 3) reporting child pornography can prevent future child sexual abuse.

Our presentation offers hope to help end child sexual abuse this century. The presentation uses proven facts to explain the true nature and scope of child pornography. Because of the palatability of the presentation, word-of-mouth is strong, and we are asked to show it on a regular basis to local groups as diverse as probation departments and large churches, averaging 10-100 attendees per presentation. Yet this is fatally inefficient.

For maximum impact, we worked to leverage mass media journalism. We urgently need print, radio and television journalists to generate stories reactively, when child pornography investigations are successful, and proactively on the topic regardless of the daily news. Only by this means can we reach tens or hundreds of thousands of residents, putting out information that is difficult to ignore, and that can be used to offer hope and a solution that rescues children and prevents future abuse.

We also need to ensure that policymakers at every level within the county are educated on the scope of the problem, the means of rescuing children, and this premier prevention solution.

We took our presentation to law enforcement agencies, media and policymakers throughout the county, educating them, and impressing upon them the urgent need to educate the public.

Supporting Heroes In mental health Foundational Training (SHIFT):

In 2009 we won a federal grant to develop a mental health and wellness program for law enforcement officers and others who are exposed to toxic child pornography at work. Exposure to child pornography can have widespread and serious negative effects on those professionals who must view it at work. According to one study, "The repeated exposure to obscene, toxic and exceptionally disturbing pictures and videos of child victims is routinely ranked among the top four stressors in the law enforcement profession, following only a fatal line-of-duty shooting, the line-of-duty death of a fellow officer, and the survival of a physical attack."

2009

IN 2009 we developed a training to help professionals learn how best to cope with the negative effects and trauma of exposure to child abuse images. These workshops, team-taught by an Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) task force Commander and mental health professional, exposed individuals will learn how and why child pornography affects them, and be presented with a variety of tools that can be selected and used according to each individual situation to maintain wellness. Mental health professionals will be taught how to support exposed individuals, and a train-the-trainer will teach trainers how to take this training out to the field on their own.

Maintaining wellness in law enforcement officers is paramount in the ongoing fight to rescue children from abuse and put child sex predators in jail. Supporting their work, through education, material assistance, and training, is our main mission.
