At DCLC we have the opportunity to change lives. Once adult learners have overcome the shame of having limited literacy skills and ask for help, they are offered individual or group instruction to help them increase their proficiency and obtain their goals. Each year, more than 500 adult learners come to DCLC for literacy help. Some just want to be able to read to their children, some need their GED, some are immigrants who need to learn English, and some seek job growth.

		Grace, a Polish immigrant who came to the United States seven years ago, is just such a person. She was an engineer in Poland who never imagined that she would gain sufficient English proficiency to work as an engineer in the United States. Grace studied English as a Second Language (ESL) at Delaware County Literacy Council (DCLC) for four years. Even though her English improved dramatically, she still lacked confidence. She took a sewing job and then quickly realized she was, in fact, proficient. Thus encouraged,
