STOPPING PREDATORY LENDING. ICAN members did public outreach (door to door, phone, and online) to educate community members about predatory lending and to work with lenders to develop alternative products. The public education process led to the collection and mass filing of complaints highlighting predatory practices with the Department of Finance. Members in seven communities reached out to public officials to share their experiences, and present information around "best practices" for addressing predatory lending. ICAN members gathered stories and released a report "Past Due" about predatory lending.
