Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

The ESL program matches native English speakers with students, placing an emphasis on conversational practice, and social interaction. Volunteer tutors serve as facilitators to help each student reach their particular goals. The topics covered are emergency situations, family & home life, body & health, job interview & application, and schedule & daily life.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

The computer programs are meant to teach both unemployed and employed individuals the computer skills necessary to find and maintain a job. Participants will learn all the basic information needed about computer technology so that they can communicate, regulate, and present information. Our goal is to empower the immigrant community through providing access to the latest computer technology. Fundamental computer skills are taught with bilingual instructions. The topics covered are typing skills, resume formatting, search engines, emails, software, and social media.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Youth Link includes two parts after school and summer youth programs. The after school program runs during Fall, Winter, and Spring quarters and provides efficient tutoring services to students of all ages in the community that we support. Our goal is to enhance academic achievement through the completion of a student's school work, the furthering of knowledge through learning activities/worksheets, the development of confidence, responsibility, and enjoyment towards learning within an education-focused environment. Volunteer tutors encourage all students' independence, confidence, enjoyment, and responsibilities towards their academics by helping them complete their homework. After homework is completed, extra study time can be used to do worksheets, activities, or reading to help strengthen a student's skills. All tutors are dedicated to building relationships with the students and helping them succeed. In the summer, the summer youth program provides students with the opportunity to maintain a high level of educational engagement while out of school. Curriculum focuses on reading, writing, and math, with work geared towards the students' appropriate levels. Students are additionally involved in projects that parallel their studies, and educational lessons are integrated with field trips to various Seattle attractions in order to engage students outside of the classroom.
