Research: In 2020, our Research team generated a wide range of timely evidence, including influential research on the impact of COVID-19 on sexual and reproductive health. At a time when many assumed that the pandemic would lead to a spike in birth rates, our research foreshadowed the "baby bust" that has since been reported extensively in the media and borne out by national data on births. This study also highlighted the disproportionate impact of the pandemic on low-income women, women of color, and Queer women and made a compelling case to increase access to safety-net family planning services to address these inequities. At the state level, we analyzed the potential impact of abortion restrictions that policymakers sought to impose during the pandemic and deepened collaborations with stakeholders to ensure that we could deliver policy-relevant findings to help inform state policy debates. Our pandemic-responsive research also included an extensively-cited set of projections of the impact of COVID-19 on reproductive health in low- and middle-income countries. Through a collaboration with the World Health Organization, we published the latest round of our global, regional and sub-regional estimates of unintended pregnancy and abortion, through a widely cited article in the Lancet Global Health. We also released the latest iteration of our flagship Adding It Up report on the costs and benefits of investing in sexual and reproductive health globally, along with the accompanying "Just the Numbers" analysis documenting the impact of U.S. international family planning assistance (which was widely cited by policymakers and advocates). Guttmacher researchers published the findings of studies in a range of top-rated peer-reviewed journals and in scientific reports and other publications. Building on decades of collaborative work, we also expanded our program of research capacity-strengthening for organizations in a number of countries.

4b (Code: ) (Expenses $ 6,439,021 including grants of $ ) (Revenue $ 46,420 )
Communications and Publications: The Institute shaped and informed media coverage and public debate on sexual and reproductive health and rights throughout 2020. We strategically disseminated the Institute's evidence and analyses in a range of formats and across a multitude of platforms, targeting key stakeholders and influencers including advocates, health care providers, policymakers and their staff, media and the scientific community. Among the results of these outreach efforts was extensive media coverage in high-profile news outlets, including the New York Times, Washington Post, The Guardian, NPR, Reuters, Politico, NBC News, and CNN. The Institute's experts also authored a number of high-impact op-eds and blog posts. For example, Dr. Palacio co-authored an op-ed in the Washington Post that laid out a series of evidence-based recommendations for the incoming Biden Administration; and two of our experts authored an op-ed in the Colorado Sun that documented our analysis of the harmful impact of a ballot amendment that would have restricted access to abortion in Colorado (the amendment was ultimately voted down). We intensified our longstanding efforts to equip US advocates with the evidence-based resources needed to fight back against restrictive policies and to advance proactive policies, and we worked closely with partner organizations in low- and middle-income countries to strengthen their capacity to effectively communicate for evidence-based policy change within their own countries and regions.

4c (Code: ) (Expenses $ 2,430,313 including grants of $ ) (Revenue $ )
Public Policy: The Institute worked to advance evidence-based policies at the state, national and global levels. We did this by monitoring and reporting on trends in state policies, providing Congressional testimony, engaging in educational briefings for policymakers and their staff, providing the factual foundation for litigation, and leading and participating in a range of federal coalitions. Highlights included helping lay the evidentiary foundation for the Supreme Court's 5-4 decision to strike down Louisiana's law restricting the provision of abortion services in June Medical Services v. Russo. In a pair of amicus briefs, Guttmacher scientists and other researchers outlined how Louisiana's law would undermine women's equality and threaten their economic security, health, safety, and autonomy. Of the 27 briefs submitted to the Supreme Court, 16 cited Guttmacher resources. Later in the year, Guttmacher CEO Dr. Herminia Palacio provided expert testimony before the U.S. House Appropriations Labor, Health and Human Services Subcommittee on the harms of the Hyde Amendment. Finally, Guttmacher policy staff played a key role in preparing for the incoming administration and Congress to lay the groundwork for important policy actions early in 2021, such as the rescinding of the Global Gag Rule and inclusion in the American Rescue Plan Act of $50 million in supplemental funds for the Title X family planning program.
