Annual meeting and seminars: NCTO conducts one annual meeting in Washington, DC and an occasional topical seminar of current interest as needed. Routine conference calls are utilized to communicate with the Board and Executive Committee and occasionally the full membership to educate on issues affecting the industry. NCTO also embraces opportunities to sponsor functions at other association gatherings as a means to educate and brief textile attendees on issues facing the textile industry. All meetings and functions are for the benefit of and are open to all NCTO members and at times nonmember industry affiliates. Average attendance at most meetings numbers around 75-150 industry representatives. For the fiscal year in question, no seminars were conducted outside the annual meeting in Washington, DC, which was attended by approximately 150 NCTO members and guests.

Public Relations Campaign: A continuation of the industry rebranding campaign entitled American Textiles -- We Make AmazingTM was designed to accurately define the 21st century U.S. textile industry. Themes and materials have been utilized that correct outdated and misleading impressions of the industry and that establish a baseline appreciation for the industry as a major employer, investor, innovator, producer, exporter, and competitor in the global marketplace. The campaign focus continues to engage NCTO members, media and influencers of industry policy.To enhance the exposure of the textile industry in the medial, NCTO works with Actualize Studio to maintain a website created in 2018 www.textilesinthenews.org showcasing the rebranding efforts as well as a site for the dissemination of artless relating to the textile industry. A weekly publication of Textiles in the News is provided to all members and associate affiliates and then stored on the new site. This site is intended to educate a wide audience.There continue to be allied organizations who have partnered with NCTO on this campaign broadening the reach to go well beyond NCTO members only. The objective of engaging multiple organizations is to further spread a more positive message on behalf of the textile industry.

4c	(Code:) (Expenses $ including grants of $) (Revenue $)
Trade consulting: As trade issues arise, NCTO often retains legal and professional services of outside consultants, contract labor, and law firms as needed to research and review these issues. Monitoring market disruption from imports and providing funds for market research and studies to substantiate and remedy such disruptions is an important function of NCTO and is extremely beneficial to the manufacturing members of NCTO in particular. Any beneficial action for manufacturers ultimately benefits suppliers and associate members as well. Therefore, this type service and action benefits all NCTO members to some degree. A consultant was contracted to provide research on Section 321 issues affecting the textile industry. The overall focus continues to be on educating the Administration on the importance of a viable textile industry. On behalf of the NCTO members and affiliates, NCTO has become a resource to government on issues affecting the industry.
